

The Surgeon Henry Samuel Shucksmith was born in Alvingham. When he was on home study, he used to walk round the village with a bag of bones from the human skeleton (not a real one), and as he walked, he would put his hand in the bag but not take it out. Instead, he trained his mind to identify each bone by feel alone. Such dedication bore great fruit!